

FAIR

Family Alzheimer's In-Home Respite

FAIR gives caregivers a temporary timeout—a brief respite from caregiving responsibilities.

What is FAIR?

FAIR—is a program designed to provide care and activities for individuals with Alzheimer's disease or a related dementia and give family caregivers a needed break.

What services are provided?

A trained worker can go into the home to provide:

- A regular break for caregivers
- Activities and companionship for the person with dementia.

What are the eligibility requirements for FAIR?

- The person receiving care must have a diagnosis of Alzheimer's disease or a related dementia
- There has to be an unpaid caregiver
- The care must be provided in West Virginia

Is there a charge for FAIR services?

The cost for FAIR services is based on a sliding fee scale.

FAIR

- WV Lottery funded program
- Is available in all 55 counties
- Meets unique needs of Alzheimer's caregivers
- Provides workers who understand Alzheimer's disease and related dementias
- Is designed to give individual attention to each person with dementia.

"When I learned that my wife qualified for FAIR, it was like I received the best Christmas present you can get."

"I am sure that, without FAIR, my mother would be in a nursing home."
